Why we wanted to research ~~teacher~~ ^{student} relationships

- It's the biggest problem at our school
- Students complain about it a lot
- We want to make it better for our school
- Wanted to see both sides -- student and teacher

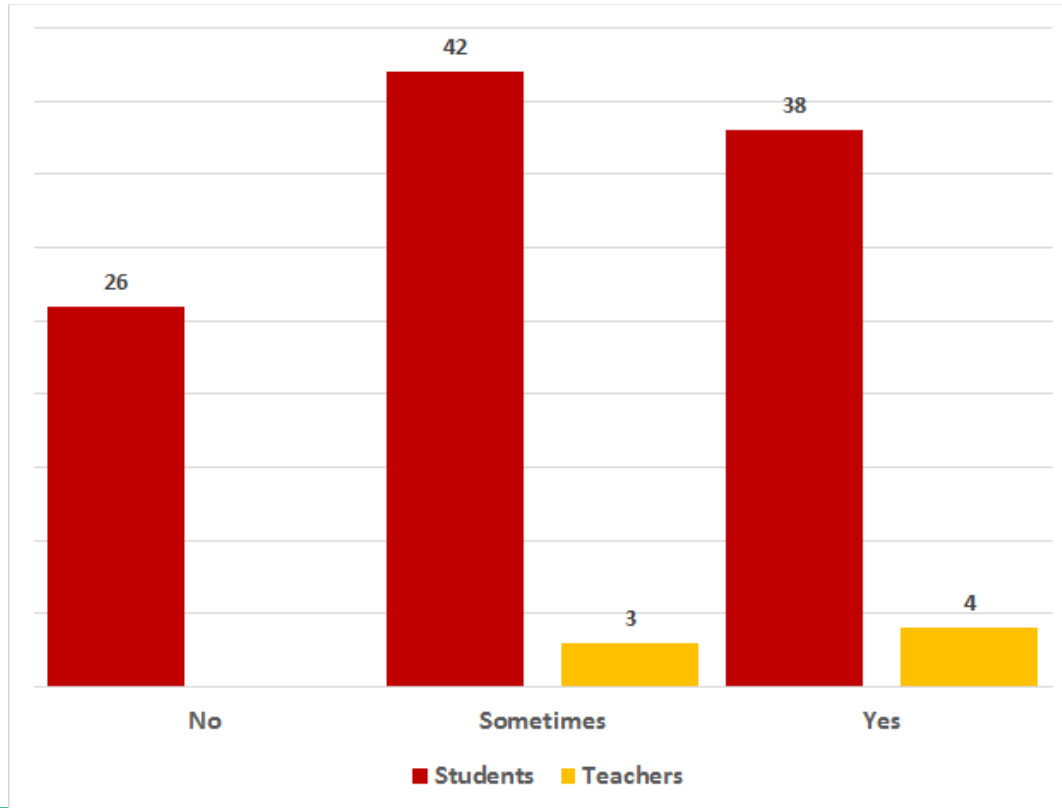

Our Survey

108 surveys were taken by 7th and 8th graders

8 teachers were surveyed

Our survey was conducted in December 2017 during 1st hour classes

Do teachers at your school resolve issues in a timely and effective manner?

Do teachers at your school resolve issues in a timely effective manner?

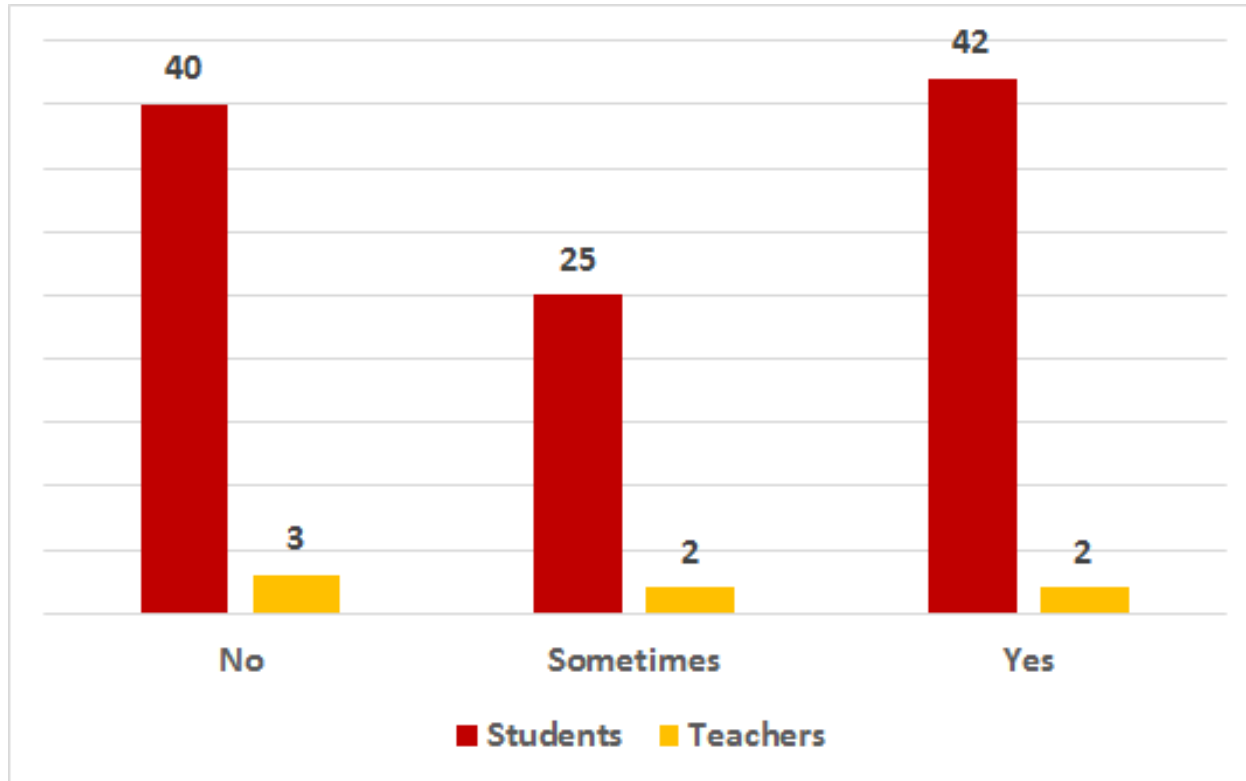

“Sometimes, but I’ve noticed a lot of teachers who just tell us to stop, and barely do anything, but finally get mad and blame everyone.”

“This school says no bullying yet it still happens like we really got some ‘great stuff’ here.”

“It depends on who you are. I think that the social workers/behavior deans are busy but will try to get to you (if you need it) ASAP. But as for some classroom teachers, not really.”

Teacher said: “I certainly struggle with this -- sometimes I embarrass students in front of their peers.”

Have you ever tried to see the problem through teachers' (or students') perspective?

Have you ever tried to see the problem through teachers' (or students') perspective?

“Yes, but sometimes, it is hard to see why they issue a consequence so quickly & sometimes unfairly.”

I guess the teacher sees two kids having a verbal fight and the teacher does not want to deal with it because the teacher still has to teach.

If there is an issue, do teachers take time out of their day to dig deeper into why you are behaving the way you are ?

Do you feel like building a better relationship with your teacher will help how you perform in the classroom ?

Do students take responsibility for their actions?

On a scale from 1 to 10, how would you rate your relationship with your teachers ?

What We Noticed

- Some students didn't take it seriously
- Those who did wrote explanations and tried to prove their point
- A lot of us have experienced this with our teachers

Ask the audience

Do you think students and teachers at your school have the same idea of what makes a good relationship?
